Text:

Praxis Health is pleased to announce the acquisition of a new clinic, Northwest Medical Associates in Vancouver, Washington.

Northwest Medical Associates was founded in 1986 by Dr. Stanley Sugarman and Dr. Alan Jones. The clinic has been an integral part of the Vancouver community for over 35 years. Praxis Health is excited to build on over three decades of excellence in health care experience.

The expansion into Vancouver, Washington marks the continued growth of Oregon's largest independent medical group with its first location in Washington. Praxis Health is focused on providing the highest possible level of care in the Pacific Northwest. As an organization that is family-owned and operated, we believe in the importance of delivering community-oriented care through accessible services that optimize the health and quality of life of all persons. We recognize that patients' trust in their health care professional is extremely valuable to clinical practice, ensuring that their personal needs are placed at the forefront.

We are committed to honoring the values of Vancouver, Washington by providing outstanding and compassionate care for our community. For more information about Northwest Medical Associates, please visit NWMA-Praxis.com
